Can women enter other men's classes in Eventor?

Under Rule 5.1 women can enter men's classes. The default setup in Eventor is that men can only enter men's classes and women can only enter women's classes. This is what most entrants want available and there are less entry errors with this setup. However, woman can still enter a men's class by initially entering any available class and then emailing eventqueries@eastertasmania2018.net.au to request the class change required.

How do I create a single entry for my family if some are elites and some are non-elites?

To remove themselves they simply need to select the class 'Does not compete' as shown below. They can still add other family members to this event by selecting either of the links as shown below.

Why are the entry fees in Eventor for the Elite Prologue and the Elite Australian 3 Days set to be the same?

Multi-day events in Eventor require that the entry fee is the same for all races so we have had to make minor adjustments to the fees for the elite multi-day event. For example an Elite Early Bird adult should pay $26 for the prologue and $42 for each of the other 3 races. Because Eventor cannot handle these different race fees we have had to charge the average fee of $38 ($152 divided by 4) for each race. If an Elite does all 4 races it will still cost $152. For the few people who may choose to opt out of some of the races and find themselves paying more than the advertised fee, we will refund the difference if you email the details to eventqueries@eastertasmania2018.net.au

How can I enter the Elite Prologue and the Non-elite Australian 3 Day so that I can be considered for State NOL team selection?

For entrants wishing to do the Elite Prologue and the non-elite Australian 3 Day events, they will need to start off selecting both of the following multiday events:

- Easter Tas - Australian 3 Days - Prologue & Days 1, 2 & 3 - Elites Only
- Easter Tas - Australian 3 Days - Days 1, 2 & 3 - Non Elites

For the 'Elites only' event they will need to deselect all races except the Prologue as shown below. Please note that the full entry fee for all races will still be displayed at this stage but will be adjusted at a later stage.
